The incident of John Brown stopping on his way to execution at Charlestown, Virginia, on the morning of December 2, 1859, to kiss a little negro child held up to him by its mother, has been seized upon by Thomas Hovenden as the subject for a $5,000 historical painting, which is said to be executed with fidelity and artistic ge-nius. Our John Brown after a quarter of a century, is made the subject of a hirtorical painting, but Victoria's John Brown, dead less than a year, is to have a life size bronze statue in the hall at Balmoral, and a large headstone for his gaave with quotations, Scriptural and poetic, selected by the queen herself. For those whose taste runs to the sweetly sentimental cremation may be made very attractive. When the body Lady Charles Dilke was sent from England to a German crematory, a wicker basket or a light coffin of straw was lined throughout with sweet herbs, in which fragrant vehicle the body was carried on its last journey. To be able to carry some touches of sentiment and prettiness to the door of the parifying enclosure will no doubt by very acceptable to a number of people, and there is no reason why the whole ceremonial should not be as reverential and solemn as that which submits our dead to the slower (and more revolting) process of mortal decay.

BENSON'S CAPCINE PLASTERS.

SLIGHT ODDS.

A 1 little Story With a Large Moral-Ose Man

Who Knew Bls Own Business. " No, my dear," said the venerable keeper of a country store to a timid little girl whose head -carcely came up to the level of the counter. " No, my dear, we haven't any rod flannel, but we have some first rate New Orleans molasses." Softly hinting that she didn't think that would answer the purpose quite as well, the child went her way in search of the article she wanted. "Have you BENSON'S CAPCINE PLAS-TERS ?" asked a gentleman of a certain druggist whose name could be given were it desired. "I am troubled just now with a touch of my old friend, the lumbago, and the Benson's Plaster seems to go to the spot almost as soon as it touches the skin." "Not at present," replied the druggist, gentally, " but we have lots of plasters just as good. There is Allcock's, the Capstenia and others-won't one of them do as well ?" "My dear sir," retorted the gentleman, with a slight show of temper, "I say nothing against those articles, but I am a business man, and always ask for precisely what I want, and for nothing else. I may enlighten you, however, when I say that sometime ago, tor another disease, of which the Capcine has since cured me, I tried all those you mention, with no appreciable benefit. They are inefficient, every one of them, the meanest act of the proprietors of some of them being this ; That they make plasters with similar sounding names to deceive the unwary into belloving they are the same thing. Experience taught me the difference. Pil go to the next man in your line. Good day."

Be on your guard against imitations. The genuine has the word CAPCINE cut cleanly in the middle of the plaster. All others are impositions.
